THIS REGIONAL PROGRAM IS ABOUT THE SAFETY OF PEOPLE AND PROPERTY IN THE EASTERN REGION.

Councils will look at a range of sites in the region and apply the principles of CPTED to them with the intention of improving levels of safety and making users of those places feel safer.

Council staff have already received CPTED training from local and international experts and are applying their skills to a wide variety of sites in the region

CPTED approaches apply directly to private homes, offices shops and businesses as well as industrial premises. Audits can be conducted and recommendations made that will reduce the risk of criminal activity and victimisation. Good CPTED practice makes it easier for Police and private security to do their jobs effectively. CPTED approaches also reduce reliance on electronic and physical security (For example, close circuit television and locks, bolts and bars).

Good design makes property less attractive to criminals. For example, if through effective natural surveillance a car park is watched over by people who care about it, less car related crime will occur.

Good CPTED makes people not only safer, but also more confident as they move around the community and enjoy its amenities. It is an effective, inexpensive and long lasting crime reduction strategy.

Crime prevention workshop facilitated by criminologist Timothy D Crowe MS.

COMMUNITY TRAINING AND INFORMATION SESSIONS

CPTED information and training sessions are available to community groups (eg. Neighbourhood Watch, Sporting clubs and groups, interest groups) schools, aged care facilities and others.

The Eastern Region Crime Prevention consultant has produced a booklet which consists of CPTED guidelines for Local Government. This easy to implement guide covers topics including: private dwellings and businesses, fencing and lighting, streetscapes, skate-parks and public parks as well as many other issues important to the prevention of crime. Copies are available from your local council and can be viewed and downloaded on each council website.
