I'm an Adelaide artist who spent almost a decade in Birmingham, England (otherwise known as Brum). It was there that I established myself as a visual artist, exhibiting and selling my work under the name 'The Crafty Brum'. I used my illustration to connect with the city and express all that I loved about it. During this time, I also co-founded 'Moved' a collective, to bring together creatives from all over the world who had chosen to call Birmingham home. I coordinated three group exhibitions in this time.

I returned to Australia in December 2023 and I have been re-exploring my connection with my hometown as a visual artist and soon my business 'The Crafty Brum' is about to enter its 5th year of trading. My art style is forever evolving, I am a self-taught, mixed media artist who works with acrylic, watercolour, digital, lino, collage and fine line illustration. I also complete large scale works such as murals and window art.

My work is heavily influenced by the landmarks that make our city our homes and often contain a botanical element.

Seeing the world has sparked a real appreciation of how wonderful South Australia is and I have been re-exploring my new connection with my hometown as a visual artist. I have enjoyed illustrating the locations I missed, those that spark fond memories and even new places which have popped up in the time I was away.

Retaining my business name 'The Crafty Brum' here in Adelaide has been a wonderful decision, it's my business origin story, a reflection of where my art journey began and has resonated with so many people who have connections to Birmingham and England. I like many others are lucky enough to call two cities home.
